AUA and Baseball Update

Urology Department Faculty and Staff

2 Items, 5 Minutes

With the 2017 American Urological Association conference in full swing, today's edition of What's New will provide an update on happenings in Boston while also looking forward to a fun event next week in Ann Arbor.

AUA 2017

To start, U-M Urology faculty fellows and residents are proudly representing the Department in presentations, posters and more. In total, our department will be making nearly 100 appearances over the course of this year's AUA! To see details on who is presenting, you can check our running list, compiled here: <https://medicine.umich.edu/dept/urology/news/archive/201705/u-m-urology-participates-2017-aua-conference>. Additionally, if there are any presentations that you've made (or are yet to make) that did not make the list, please email me with the details so I can make the correction.

In addition to being active on the presentation front, representatives from our Department are also active in attending presentations, supporting colleagues and documenting their activity on social media. The AUA is using the #AUA17 to organize social media discussion, and has identified our own Dr. Khurshid Ghani as one of the "accounts to follow" for this year's event...

...and our individual faculty members are active in sharing and discussions.

D'Amico: favor prostatectomy in young man with Gleason 7 PCa. (Not sure that made it into the ProtecT editorial) #aua17

There's a lot more activity and enjoyment left at this year's AUA, so feel free to follow along on social media or look for it in a future edition of What's New.

Baseball-Michigan vs. Michigan State, 6 P.M., May 19

One week from today (6 P.M. on May 19) at the Ray Fischer Stadium on the University of Michigan's athletic campus, our Department (in partnership with the Comprehensive Cancer Center) will sponsor the Michigan Baseball Team's game against Michigan State. We'll have a limited amount of free tickets which are being reserved for patients, but free admission is also available to anyone who volunteers to hand out informational material during the game (general admission tickets are only $6 and reserved seating tickets are $8).

If you are interested in getting involved, please let me know as soon as possible. I'll be in touch over the course of next week with reminders and updates (and please don't hesitate to contact me with any questions).

Thank you for taking the time to read this edition of What's New!
